9.III. 50 Church Street

D. Trefethen briefly explains the plan since the city still owns the property. This will go in front of the Historic District Commission and a site plan for the Planning Board. The plan is to maintain the original school structure but demolish the stage and gym area that was believed to be constructed in the fifties. There will be outside parking for the project and a four-unit addition that will be located on the back of the old school building.

Applicant Kevin Morrissette went over the concept, it will be a new structure with apartments. The new structure is going to be wood. There will be twenty-one parking places created so it does not impede on City parking. Plans to replace windows and to keep the same entrance. Not many noticeable changes. The new façade is still being worked out. Upgrading electrical, plumbing, and heating systems to standard along with landscaping.

There was a discussion on taxes and the assessment values.

J. Whitehead likes the idea of the mixed materials for the façade. Feels the historic value is more important than aesthetics.

M. Hayes thinks there is no historic value and there is no value all together it is just a shell.

The applicant is going to preserve as much as possible.
